Chapter 1 by Grace1517

Do whatever it takes, that's what my mother said to me before I left her and my family behind to compete to become the Lightling's apprentice. In this I would have to prove that I was more worthy than all of the others and, of course, winning would mean fame and fortune. My family was very poor and this was the only chance we would have to be able to support the entire family.

I needed to win this, my family needed me and I couldn't let them down.

The only problem? I have no idea what talent I have that the rest don't, I plan to find out and win. No matter what it takes.
